

Dear Parents/Carers,

Please read all of the below information carefully. Attached with this letter you will find;

- Home Learning optional activities sheet
- Science lesson plans
- Topic overview for this half term

Home Learning will start from Monday 11th January. At the moment, we are unable to provide any live sessions as originally planned, but this is being worked on. Below is a timetable of suggested timings for learning at home. It can be flexible to suit the needs of you and your family and is just a suggestion, however I will not be able to move any of the live sessions as I am still teaching in school as well.

I understand that you may not always be able to engage in the home learning every day, due to other commitments such as caring for other children, work and shopping for essentials etc. Ideally though, I would like children to access as many sessions as possible, as I also have to monitor the work that children are doing.

Pre-recorded sessions

These videos are a mixture of stories, English and Maths. They do follow on from each other so please try and complete them in order. I will send them out the night before so that you have time to look at it. There are also various points that you may want to pause the videos. I have also tried my best to make them accessible to every child's needs.

Optional activities

These are learning ideas for our foundation subjects and also link to our topic. I would recommend trying to choose one activity a day, and some of the ideas are project based so might take a few days. For the PE ideas, please try and do these everyday if you can as it is important that the children keep active.

Worksheets

I have sent some worksheets home, as I know that some children can access these better. I will send more worksheets home again in a few weeks.

Speech and Language

If your child accesses speech and language at school, they will be in touch about offering you tele therapy sessions from home.

Matheltics/Purple Mash and reading eggs

From Monday, the children will have work set on these programs. If you need your passwords please contact me.
